Globally Recognized Standards

Sustainability reporting is a common way to communicate sustainability performance to stakeholders. The Global Reporting Initiative (GRI) provides the world's most widely used framework for sustainability reporting. The GRI Standards offer a structured format to coherently and comprehensively share information about material issues, performance metrics, and the management of sustainability-related issues within the organization.

Our Approach to GRI Reporting

Sustainerv brings a creative and structured approach to your sustainability reporting project. Tailored to your reporting experience, state of affairs and business environment we provide you with tools and insights that help you compile your sustainability report according to the GRI Standards.

Our services include:

- Benchmarking and readiness analysis
- Materiality assessments
- Report concept development
- Data and information collection
- Text development and expert editorial services
- GRI alignment and submission management
- Strategic communication plans

What is GRI?

- GRI is an international independent organization that has pioneered corporate sustainability reporting since 1997. GRI helps organizations understand and communicate the impact of business on critical issues such as climate change, human rights, corruption and others.
- Thousands of companies in over 90 countries use the GRI framework to disclose their sustainability performance.
- In October 2016, GRI published its newest sustainability reporting framework: The GRI Standards.
